HONEYWELL LAUNCHES SECURITY SYSTEM APPLICATION FOR iPhone

My Keypad App Allows Home and Business Owners to Control Security Systems While On the Go

MELVILLE, N.Y., Aug. 10, 2009 – Honeywell (NYSE:HON) has launched a new application for the Apple iPhone® that allows home and business owners to stay connected to their security systems while on the go.

Available on Apple's iTunes® App Store ^(SM), the My Keypad App is compatible with Honeywell security control panels and replicates a physical keypad on the iPhone and iPod Touch® touchscreens, enabling users to perform tasks such as remotely arming or disarming their security systems. My Keypad is part of Honeywell's popular Total Connect application that allows home and business owners to command and control their security systems from any location via Web browser.

“Staying connected makes for greater peace-of-mind for both home and business owners concerned about their family's safety and their business security,” said Gordon Hope, general manager of Honeywell's AlarmNet® communications network. “Mobile devices like the iPhone are known for the conveniences they add to our everyday lives. Applications like My Keypad and Total Connect, though, offer more than just convenience – they allow you to control an important aspect of your home and/or business even if you're not physically there.”

In addition to controlling security systems using My Keypad, Total Connect customers can be notified of activities happening inside the home or business. For example, the system can send emails that alert users to specific events such as when a child disarms the security system upon returning home from school, or when a gun or liquor cabinet has been opened.
